November 2022 E-Newsletter

Important Dates & Reminders

Family Weekend
The Fall on campus is needed for launch of all our events. Family Weekend is being held November 19-11, 2022. (Due the event of this at The Hotel 13, students can participate fully.)

Penn Libraries

Penn Student Agencies

Penn Museum

During the busiest times of the school year, student support centers are open late, often until 7 PM or later, to provide access to services and resources. Students can also visit the Student Health and Counseling Office (3624 Market Street) at any time during regular business hours without an appointment for counseling problems, preventative health services, as well as mental health and counseling, crisis management, and consultations.

Plus, the Penn Libraries offers a multitude of amenities for students to use, including space for studying, food and beverage, and technology. The libraries are open 24/7 throughout the semester, with a long list of services available.

Student Support

Wellness at Penn

Penn First Plus

Penn Parents

Community Life

National Coming Out Day
On Tuesday, October 11th, the LGBT Student Center hosted a pop-up community event for National Coming Out Day. Students were invited to join in the celebration and express their pride. This event was a perfect joyous way to start the month of October and create a welcoming environment for all students, staff, and faculty.

A Toast to Dear Old Penn
Penn Student Performing Arts House is thrilled to present A Toast to Dear Old Penn. This event will be held November 19th at the Scottish Rite Temple, featuring performances by the Penn Student Rare Book Collection, and will be hosted by the Friends of the Library. The event is free for all, and will feature a toast to the history and legacy of the University of Pennsylvania.

Penn: Live from Zankel Hall at Carnegie Hall
The Platt Student Performing Arts House is excited to present A Toast to Dear Old Penn. This event will be held November 19th at the Scottish Rite Temple, featuring performances by the Penn Student Rare Book Collection, and will be hosted by the Friends of the Library. The event is free for all, and will feature a toast to the history and legacy of the University of Pennsylvania.

Penn Museum

The Penn Museum is opening their new installation of the A Toast to Dear Old Penn. This event will be held November 19th at the Scottish Rite Temple, featuring performances by the Penn Student Rare Book Collection, and will be hosted by the Friends of the Library. The event is free for all, and will feature a toast to the history and legacy of the University of Pennsylvania.

Penn Campus Recreation

During the busiest times of the school year, student support centers are open late, often until 7 PM or later, to provide access to services and resources. Students can also visit the Student Health and Counseling Office (3624 Market Street) at any time during regular business hours without an appointment for counseling problems, preventative health services, as well as mental health and counseling, crisis management, and consultations.

Penn Libraries

During the busiest times of the school year, student support centers are open late, often until 7 PM or later, to provide access to services and resources. Students can also visit the Student Health and Counseling Office (3624 Market Street) at any time during regular business hours without an appointment for counseling problems, preventative health services, as well as mental health and counseling, crisis management, and consultations.

Penn First Plus

Want to learn about the ways Penn First Plus supports students? Connect with a Penn First Plus advisor to learn more about the services they offer, including academic coaching, career development, and personal and professional development.

Penn Parents

Want to learn about the ways Penn First Plus supports students? Connect with a Penn First Plus advisor to learn more about the services they offer, including academic coaching, career development, and personal and professional development.

Penn Student Agencies

Penn Museum

The Penn Museum is opening their new installation of the A Toast to Dear Old Penn. This event will be held November 19th at the Scottish Rite Temple, featuring performances by the Penn Student Rare Book Collection, and will be hosted by the Friends of the Library. The event is free for all, and will feature a toast to the history and legacy of the University of Pennsylvania.

Penn: Live from Zankel Hall at Carnegie Hall
The Platt Student Performing Arts House is excited to present A Toast to Dear Old Penn. This event will be held November 19th at the Scottish Rite Temple, featuring performances by the Penn Student Rare Book Collection, and will be hosted by the Friends of the Library. The event is free for all, and will feature a toast to the history and legacy of the University of Pennsylvania.

Penn Museum

The Penn Museum is opening their new installation of the A Toast to Dear Old Penn. This event will be held November 19th at the Scottish Rite Temple, featuring performances by the Penn Student Rare Book Collection, and will be hosted by the Friends of the Library. The event is free for all, and will feature a toast to the history and legacy of the University of Pennsylvania.

Penn Campus Recreation

During the busiest times of the school year, student support centers are open late, often until 7 PM or later, to provide access to services and resources. Students can also visit the Student Health and Counseling Office (3624 Market Street) at any time during regular business hours without an appointment for counseling problems, preventative health services, as well as mental health and counseling, crisis management, and consultations.

Penn Libraries

During the busiest times of the school year, student support centers are open late, often until 7 PM or later, to provide access to services and resources. Students can also visit the Student Health and Counseling Office (3624 Market Street) at any time during regular business hours without an appointment for counseling problems, preventative health services, as well as mental health and counseling, crisis management, and consultations.

Penn First Plus

Want to learn about the ways Penn First Plus supports students? Connect with a Penn First Plus advisor to learn more about the services they offer, including academic coaching, career development, and personal and professional development.

Penn Parents

Want to learn about the ways Penn First Plus supports students? Connect with a Penn First Plus advisor to learn more about the services they offer, including academic coaching, career development, and personal and professional development.